September's Most Exciting New York Openings

Cars, 2015

Agathe Snow at Albertz Benda, September 10 through 26

Snow is best known for funky-junky mixed-media sculptures and paintings ripe with baubles (one 2012 work proudly notes “cast soft-latex tits” as a component). But the artist opens the project space of this new Chelsea venture with a “Coyote Ugly,” an immersive installation thematized around illegal immigration; there’s an interactive and theatrical component as well, with a series of performances on September 12, 16, 19, and 23. (The gallery is also showing photographic works from 1968-78 by Bill Beckley, through October 3.)
